

Anshai Torah Preschool—your early childhood home

As we start our new year, our students are learning about themselves, their new friends and our preschool family. All age groups are exploring body awareness with games, drawing and even songs in Hebrew. Mat man has visited our upstairs' classrooms, and he is helping us learn to draw ourselves and others. We will shortly begin discussions about hopes for the new year. Our students are trying to grasp classroom rules and the best ways to navigate new friendships. They are carefully crafting wishes and promises to treat others and our greater world in a kind manner. Obviously, this looks differently in every classroom. It might be gentle hugs, squeals of excitement, inquisitive looks or well thought out discussions. All our students are trying hard to reach the next level, whether it is writing their name, learning their first Hebrew words or using the potty. And, the teachers and staff are striving for the top too. I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone who works hard every day to reach for the stars. As we move into the new year, I hope that we all have the opportunity to set and reach new goals.
